Introduction

The Peace Institute strives for an open community capable of critical thinking and founded on the principles of equality, accountability, solidarity, human rights and the rule of law. (The Peace Institute's Vision)

The main activity in implementing the Peace Institute's vision is scientific and research work, from which we draw the knowledge and inspiration for educational, advocacy and awareness-raising activities. In 2018, 37 research and action projects were performed at the Institute independently or in partnerships with diverse and acknowledged institutions from Slovenia and across Europe. We performed innovative research, developed methods, advanced the theory, and published research findings in numerous scientific and professional publications. We developed and implemented educational activities for high-school students, employers, migrants, employees in the judiciary and other target publics. We publicly advocated for better policies in the fields of poverty alleviation and precarity, long-term care, the rights of sex workers and the integration of migrants. In addition, we created and presented to the public a range of awareness-raising materials – from videos, manuals and brochures to learning scenarios and campaigns.

Politics

Our activities and projects are divided into four thematic fields, strategically developed at the Institute: politics, human rights, media and gender. In the politics thematic field, we were active in diverse areas in 2018, as we dealt with populism, intersectional discrimination, non-standard employment, integration of migrants, hate speech, minimum income and political theory. The field was strengthened by three basic research projects: Political and Media Populism: The "Refugee Crisis" in Slovenia and Austria (project leader dr. Mojca Pajnik); Citizenship and Discrimination: An Intersectional Approach to the Study of Social Exclusion (PI's project leader dr. Mojca Pajnik); and Segmentation of Non-standard Employment in Slovenia (PI's project leader dr. Maja Breznik). We implemented two projects in the field of integration of migrants, and within the framework of the MIGRASCOPE project: Extending the Scope of Labour Market Integration of Immigrants (PI's project leader dr. Lana Zdravkovič) focused on the issue of facilitating access to work for third-country nationals and citizens. The high interest for this topic was demonstrated by a large number of participants in the workshops, which were also intended for employers. Except in the politics thematic field, migration projects have also been implemented in the field of human rights. We have strengthened the expertise in the field of hate speech, including studying the possibilities for its automated recognition, within the framework of two projects, which are managed at the Institute by dr. Veronika Bajt. Last year, we continued the organisation of the reading seminar for political theory (project leader dr. Vlasta Jalušič), which was thematically designed to spread the idea of common grounds between Islam and Christianity. In the past year, the Peace Institute joined the European Network for Minimum Income 2 (headed by Mojca Frelih, MA), and thus joined the efforts to realise the right to an adequate, accessible and inclusive minimum income.

Human Rights

Our educational activities form an essential part of our work in the thematic field of human rights and other fields. In the past year, we developed, tested and implemented various learning scenarios and activities for different target groups. Within the Equality and Diversity in our Community project (headed by dr. Iztok Šori), we conducted workshops on recognising discrimination and migrations, involving 500 high-school students from various secondary schools throughout Slovenia. The contribution of guests with the experience of migration was essential for the success of the workshops, thus we extend our gratitude to them for the cooperation. Within the project of Global Education and Active Response for the Protection of Human Rights, Inclusion and Democratic Values in Intercultural Societies (PI's project leader dr. Veronika Bajt) we conducted trainings for teachers and educators about tolerance and interculturalism. Within the MEET project (Media Education for Equity and Tolerance) (PI's project leader dr. Mojca Pajnik), we developed a pedagogical toolkit with several practical examples of how to teach simultaneously intercultural and media education. In the field of human rights, the Crimmigration between Human Rights and Control project (headed by dr. Neža Kogovšek Šalamon) was successfully completed last year, during which we investigated the causes and consequences of the criminalisation of migrations. The findings of the project are published in the thematic issue of the magazine Dve domovini (Two homelands) and will be published soon as a scientific monograph at Springer Publishing House. In 2018, we continued the implementation of several partner projects in the area of criminal law (PI's project leader Katarina Vučko), within which we conducted training for lawyers, judges and prosecutors on the rights of crime victims, examined the situation regarding procedural rights of suspects in (pre)trial cases and issued a manual Dignity at Trial, aimed at strengthening the procedural rights of persons with intellectual and mental health disabilities in criminal proceedings. We continued to cooperate with the Human Rights Ombudsman within the National Preventive Mechanism (headed by Mojca Frelih, MA) and in this context, we monitored the institutions in which persons deprived of their liberty were accommodated.

Media

In the thematic field of the media, we carried out a new project Establishing a Coalition of Human Rights Defenders, Media Freedom and Independent Journalism (Headed by Brankica Petković, MA), within which we investigated media ownership, patterns of media financing and attacks on journalists. In partnerships with an extensive network of organisations from the Western Balkans, we participated in the efforts to develop democratic media systems in the region: we advised on the design and implementation of research on media subsidies in Macedonia, participated in the promotion of the principles of the journalistic code of ethics in Montenegro and coordinated research on media and information literacy in Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Montenegro, Macedonia and Serbia (headed by Brankica Petković, MA). In addition, we also investigated the media in other thematic fields, such as examining the parallels between political and media populism in the field of politics and gender differentiation in the media industry in the field of gender.

Gender

The projects we carried out in the past year in the thematic field of gender are grounded in the feminist theory and critical studies of men and masculinity. Within the project Masculinities, Equality, Care Practices (headed by dr. Majda Hrženjak), we examined practices of care in single and same-sex fathers, in men who take care of other family members, as well as men who are employed in institutions, such as elderly homes. With the project Boys in Care – Strengthening Boys to Pursue Care Occupations (PI's project leader dr. Majda Hrženjak), we have contributed to better informing boys about vocational choices, since research demonstrates that boys do not receive adequate support from counselling services when they express interest in gender-atypical careers. We conducted a survey on good practices in the field of reconciliation of work and family life in the information and communication technologies sector and participated in the study on the implementation of the Beijing Platform, which emerges in the context of the forthcoming 25th anniversary of the Fourth World Conference on Women (PI's project leader Živa Humer). At the conference held in Beijing in 1995, the signatory states have committed themselves, among other things, to the realisation of equal rights and the inseparable human dignity of women and men. With a series of publications and an international conference, we concluded the scientific and research project Gender Differentiation in Media Industry (headed by dr. Mojca Pajnik), in which we explored gender inequalities in the media at the crossroads of media politics, production, representation and consumption. We used contemporary pedagogical approaches to address gender-based violence among young people: in the Play It for Change project (headed by dr. Živa Humer), we investigated how we can contribute to the reduction of violence by creating audio-visual media content and music. In the project Developing Bystander Responses to Sexual Harassment among Young People (headed by dr. Vlasta Jalušič), we implemented an innovative curriculum at three schools in Slovenia and produced an awareness-raising video. We were also active in Rwanda where we co-organised free literacy, sewing and hairdressing courses for vulnerable groups of women to contribute to their higher literacy and economic independence (headed by Maja Ladič).

Projects

The number of projects we carried out in the past year (37) does not deviate significantly from the number in previous years (in 2017, we carried out 42 projects; 36 in 2016; 33 in 2015; and 41 in 2014), thus maintaining the stable functioning of the Institute. Out of 37 projects, eight were financed by the Slovenian Research Agency (ARRS), which points to the scientific excellence of the Institute's employees. Twenty-four projects were financed by the European Commission and other EU bodies, and one by the NEF – the Network of European Foundations (Civitates Programme), the Human Rights Ombudsman of the Republic of Slovenia, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Government Communication Office and the European Social Fund. The new financier in 2018 was the Ministry of Public Administration, from which we obtained funds for co-financing of three European projects.

Collective

On 1 November 2018, the managing of the Peace Institute was passed from dr. Neža Kogovšek Šalamon to dr. Iztok Šori. At the end of 2018, the Institute's collective was composed of seventeen colleagues. The number of employees increased by one in 2018 compared to 2017 as dr. Maja Breznik re-joined. Currently, ten of our staff have PhDs, four hold MAs, while two colleagues are PhD candidates. In the past year, our colleague Marko Ribač obtained a PhD after training at the Institute as a young researcher under the mentorship of dr. Mojca Pajnik.

Communication with the Public

In the course of scientific publications, the public was informed about the results of our work and activities through the Institute's website, newsletter, Facebook account and YouTube channel (coordinated by Jasna Babič, MA). Within our projects we produced more than 25 documentary videos and made them available online. We are particularly proud that, despite being financed exclusively on the project basis, we maintained the functioning of our library (headed by Polona Gorkič).

I am delighted to conclude this annual report by observation that in the year 2018, the Peace Institute consolidated its position as a recognised scientific-research institution and an esteemed project partner at the international level, while in Slovenia maintaining the position of one of the key actors in the field of research, education, advocacy and awareness-raising on human rights, anti-discrimination and marginalised groups.

AIMS AND GOALS

The project examines the link between political parties, the media and right-wing populism on the example of so-called “refugee crisis” in 2015 and 2016 in two countries at the central and northern end of the Balkan route, Slovenia and Austria. The historical background of the project is the erosion of “party democracy” and the rise of “populist democracy”, marked by the decline of classical political leadership and the rise of extremist political forces that are directed against the “other”.

REALIZATION IN 2018

In the first two months of the project duration we have operationalised the research design.

FUNDING

- Slovenian Research Agency

AIMS AND GOALS

In recent years, Slovenia has been faced with visible phenomena of intolerance, discrimination and exclusion, which are the result of the economic crisis and the crisis of democracy in general, as well as a reflection of the crisis of active citizenship. Despite an increase in research work in the field of social inequality and economic systems, a broader view is needed to understand today’s social and political reality. The proposed research project therefore reverses the logic of dominant research, and approaches the analysis of exclusion for the perspective of the margins – intersectionally, we will analyse narrations, policies and representations through the prism of sexual and ethnic discrimination – the results will then be applied to the field of researching citizenship as the status that should guarantee to all full membership in the community.

REALIZATION IN 2018

The project team at the PI prepared state of the art report reviewing studies on citizenship and discrimination.

AVAILABLE RESULTS IN 2018

- See: <http://drzavljanstvoindiskriminacija.splet.arnes.si/>.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PROJECT CONTINUATION

The project team has operationalized a 3-year research plan. We have reviewed the existing literature, on the basis of which we plan to prepare a project report and a scientific paper. In 2019 we will focus on the preparation of the methodology and the implementation of the empirical research on discrimination, applying the intersection approach.

AIMS AND GOALS

Research will, first, examine, why the segmentation of non-standard employment in Slovenia continues, and second, why the situation of some groups of workers in low-income standard employment relationships is nearing the situation of the most disadvantaged group of workers in non-standard employment relationships.

REALIZATION IN 2018

The research was launched in June. By December, the research group worked on three work packages. We drafted "Plan for the usage of data" (WP2) to be reviewed by the Ethics Commission. We prepared a plan for collecting micro statistical data (WP3) and forwarded it to Statistical Office of the Republic of Slovenia with a request for access to data. At three research group meetings, we discussed intermediate findings for WP1 (conceptual analysis).

- SwIdeas, Sweden

FUNDING

- European Commission, Asylum, Migration and Integration Fund (AMIF)

AIMS AND GOALS

The basic research activities of the project follow two directions. Participating partners will first examine the occurrence of hate speech in the Slovene language in the corresponding parts of global online social networks (OSNs). On this basis, it will be identified in which social networks and at which locations (groups, profiles) hate speech is most present, and then the phenomena will be analysed qualitatively. The distinction between hate speech in a broader, sociological sense (as well as other related controversial communications) and hate speech in the legal sense will be made. A qualitative analysis of hate speech on social networks will be followed by an analysis of the criteria used by OSNs in removing reported cases of alleged hate speech and an analysis of response indicators – in particular the speed of removal, the type of (non) response (e.g. probable automatic handling, the presence of a specific explanation, complete non-response) and rates of removal in individual cases of hate speech that the OSN provider performs on the basis of the application. Whether and how the responsiveness of networks is affected by who is the content submitter will be checked.

REALIZATION IN 2018

The year 2018 saw the start of project activities with two project meetings taking place.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PROJECT CONTINUATION

The majority of project activities will be carried out in 2019.

Resources, methods and tools for the understanding, identification and classification of various forms of socially unacceptable discourse in the information society

AIMS AND GOALS

With an expansion of information and communication technologies and computer-mediated communication, and with the speed of information dissemination through the Internet, offensive and hate speech has gained an entirely new dimension, so we need an automated approach at the same time to effectively deal with it in the information society. The project is highly interdisciplinary and connects experts from the field of corpus linguistics and sociolinguistics with experts in the field of critical analysis of discourse and social science survey and legal analysis with experts in the field of language technologies and machine learning for Slovene.

REALIZATION IN 2018

In 2018 the project activities included the Implementation of a test labeling campaign, in which markers appear as experts, and the implementation of a second round of the campaign by preparing reports with feedback to the markup scheme and pyboso. The aim of this rescue and reporting is that we have adjusted the marking scheme accordingly to true marking. It is an annotation campaign of socially unacceptable comments on Facebook pages of various Slovenian media, which took place in April and May 2018. The construction of corps was followed, which will enable empirical research in the project, and includes linguistic processing and enrichment of metadata in the corpus; data analysis; participation in the form of review of contributions for "ALW2: 2nd Workshop on Abusive Language Online Conference."

MEET: Media education for equity and tolerance

AIMS AND GOALS

MEET aims at promoting a critical and inter-cultural understanding as well as an aware use of media among young citizens in multicultural public schools in democratic societies. It mainly addresses economically and socially disadvantaged youth (aged 13–19), including migrants and refugees, by engaging them and their teachers in an action research process to co-design and develop inter-cultural media education practices inspired by principles of equity, tolerance, social justice and solidarity. In this respect, MEET can be seen as an educational (or pedagogical) challenge to a broader culture of exclusion, exclusivism and discrimination that nowadays seems to permeate many political discourses and media representations, as well as the widespread neo-liberal reconfiguration of educational provision. Finally, the project intends to advocate Media Education as a means to support social inclusion/justice among different sections of the public and through several dissemination tools, from the production of an educational documentary to the spreading of policy recommendations, digital toolkits and scientific papers on media and citizenship education.

REALIZATION IN 2018

We have designed, together with teachers, media education materials for critical media literacy and culture of justice and equality in selected multicultural schools in three countries (Italy, Germany and Slovenia). In Slovenian context we have chosen two schools where we have conducted field research, i.e. implementation of learning materials: Dvojezična srednja šola/Kétnyelvű Középiskola (Lendava, SL) and Srednja šola tehniških strok Šiška (Ljubljana, SL). We have filmed part of the activities in school in Lendava for the MEET educational documentary that is available at <https://meetolerance.eu/>. Also, we have produced materials for teachers to be used in class.

EVENTS IN 2018

- Study visit of students of media and communications and journalism programs from the Faculty of Social Sciences, Ljubljana University, at the University of Florence where they got acquainted with MEET project, 17 April 2018,
- meeting of the project consortium, 7–8 June 2018, Berlin,
- we presented MEET project results at the event Media Education to Address Culture of Fear organized by the Peace Institute and the National Education Institute Slovenia, 20 August 2018, Ljubljana,
- pedagogical documentary presenting video capsules on three MEET key concepts, understanding, expression and engagement was screened at the international multidisciplinary symposium Sounds of Minorities, as part of the festival organized by Imago Sloveniae, 24 August 2018, Ljubljana,
- final conference was organised in by Média Animation to discuss strategies for promoting social equality in schools and in documentary video production, 15 November 2018, Brussels.

AVAILABLE RESULTS IN 2018

- See: <http://www.mirovni-institut.si/en/projects/meet-media-education-for-equality-and-tolerance/> and <https://www.facebook.com/MEETolerance/>.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PROJECT CONTINUATION

We have successfully designed educational materials tailored to the needs of selected schools that have been implemented on the sample of 150 pupils in three countries. Evaluation of work in schools has shown the great need for inclusion of such content in school curricula. Public presentations of the project, together with a documentary film, came across a positive response from the professional public. We expect the results of the project to be used in the future – teachers' materials and educational documentary are available on the project's website. In 2019 we plan to publish results of the project in a book.

AIMS AND GOALS

The NPM is an independent national body whose members visit persons deprived of their liberty as well as those places where these persons are detained. The NPM aims to strengthen the protection of persons deprived of their liberty against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

REALIZATION IN 2018

In the year 2018 the Peace Institute team visited 13 institutions, among them premises for police detentions, prison, homes for the elderly and educational institution. After each visit team members submitted observations to the Human Rights Ombudsman, in some cases they took the lead in writing the whole report.

AVAILABLE RESULTS IN 2018

- Visit reports are available at the Human Rights Ombudsman's website. See: <http://www.varuh-rs.si/>.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PROJECT CONTINUATION

The aim is to visit places of detention to inspect and monitor the manner in which the staff treats the occupants of the secure wards/institutions where people's liberty is deprived. In some cases the focus of visits was on the living conditions instead of on the systematic issues, meanwhile in the others the visits are specific focused on contents. The experiences gave a good insight in the situations in these facilities; therefore the Peace Institute will cooperate with Ombudsman in the future.

Gender differentiation in media industry

PROJECT TEAM

- Mojca Frelih, Researcher

- Brankica Petkovič, Researcher
- Marko Ribač, Researcher

PARTNERS

- University of Ljubljana, Faculty of Social Sciences, Breda Luthar, Maruša Pušnik, Dejan Jontes

FUNDING

- Slovenian Research Agency

AIMS AND GOALS

The project deals with the processes of gender differentiation in the media industry reproduced through the media's convergence, conglomeration and commodification in the context of the rise of information and communication technologies. Departing from the finding about the lack of suitable epistemologies and methods to adequately address gender differentiation in the media, the project introduces theoretical starting points of the feminist political economy of communication which highlights the need for synergy of the macro, mezzo and micro levels of research or presumes structural and institutional analysis combined with the experiences of actors who work in the media industry or participate in it as consumers. The project introduces a feminist inclusive conceptualisation of gender which studies gender relations by integrating the perspective of intersectionality through which it identifies the intertwining of gender with ethnicity, sexuality etc. that produces discriminatory effects.

REALIZATION IN 2018

In 2018 the following activities were carried out:

- design of methodology for ethnographic research that was carried out in 2018 at the example of three TV stations in Slovenia (RTVSLO, POP TV and Planet TV),
- organisation of international conference in Ljubljana, 14–15 June 2018. 30 speakers from 12 countries analysed media policies and identified their effects on the gender differentiation of journalistic work. They highlighted inequalities in the field of media distribution, analysed audiences and discussed framing of femininity and masculinity in media text and image. Abstracts were published in a booklet (eds. M. Pajnik, M. Frelih) and are available at <http://www.mirovni-institut.si/wp-content/uploads/2018/06/text-for-booklet-June-Final.pdf>,
- work on chapters for the book that is in preparation, gathering overall results from the project (eds. M. Pajnik, B. Luthar).

EVENTS IN 2018

- International conference, 14–15 June 2018, Ljubljana. Abstracts are available at <http://www.mirovni-institut.si/wp-content/uploads/2018/06/text-for-booklet-June-Final.pdf>.

AVAILABLE RESULTS IN 2018

- See: <http://www.mirovni-institut.si/en/projects/gender-differentiation-in-media-industry/>.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PROJECT CONTINUATION

In the project, we managed to operationalize theoretically-methodologically a set goal, which was to approach gender differentiation analysis at the cross-section of the macrostructure of digital capitalism and the specifics of media policies, the mezzo-organizational level of media institutions and the micro-legal ritual design of journalistic conventions. During the three years of the project, we carried out a comprehensive empirical research, which included analysis of policies and legislation, interviews, ethnographic research, analysis of broadcasts news, media consumption diaries and opinion polls. In the year 2019, the book will be published entitled Mediji in spol: struktura in prakse neenakosti (Media and gender: the structures and practices of inequality).

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE PROJECT CONTINUATION

The project activities were carried out in accordance with the project plan. The project continues in 2019, when a number of activities are planned, from the implementation of workshops for teachers (capacity building programme), raising awareness activities, the preparation of a music/audio visual product of young people and its presentations in Slovenia and at the final conference in Barcelona (autumn 2019).

Developing Bystander Responses to Sexual Harassment among Young People

AIMS AND GOALS

In 2014 the Fundamental Rights Agency found that sexual harassment (SH) was the most prevalent form of violence against girls and women, across the 28 EU member states. A promising new approach to the prevention of SH is targeting young people as bystanders, inviting them to notice and intervene in SH situations. In this project, developed in Portugal, Slovenia, United Kingdom and Malta, the researchers will develop, pilot, implement, and evaluate a school-based program for bystanders to prevent SH in high-schools.

Objectives are to increase knowledge and awareness of SH in students and staff; develop, pilot and deliver a training program for students and school staff to enable them to intervene in situations of SH, increase the motivation of bystanders to stop SH in high schools, develop a manual and materials adapted to each country, develop school policies and protocols on SH, compare the implementation and effectiveness of the program in the four countries.

REALIZATION IN 2018

The main activities were implementation of the Bystanders programme in three schools in Slovenia and other countries, writing implementation diaries, adaptation of manual, video production, writing of national reports, final national conferences, writing comparative report, and final report.
